

8/4/88

Dear Harold,

Through some friends and the library, I was able to track down most of the articles I had written you about. The one paper (and I use that term lightly) that I was unable to track down was The USA Today article about Cronkite's being turned down by CBS on his assassination special (the one where actors would read portions of The Warren Report). Again, if you can find a library that has US Today it appeared anywhere from the last week of June to mid-July in the Life Section in the "Inside TV" column by Matt Roush.

I have enclosed the <sup>page</sup> ~~article~~ from Variety Mon. July 11, 1988 which has the article about Jack ~~Anderson's~~ Anderson's special.

On the bottom of the page is an article about Cronkite, that says he was unhappy with CBS. One of the reasons was his exclusion from the news and also CBS's mixing the JFK special. On the page from Variety July 13 is a blurb which includes mention of the CBS special on JFK (not necessarily on the assassination, but more on his life). The Hollywood Reporter page from July 15, 1988 has the notice of CBS special and mentions that Cronkite's program was never approved. It doesn't say why or what Cronkite's show was, so it had to be in U.S.A. Today. The pages from The Hollywood Reporter has the article about Jack Anderson's special. And finally, I've included the review of LIBRA by Don DeLillo from the New York Times Book Review of 7/24/88.

I leafed through the book at the store and although DeLillo admits that the book is fiction and it is not the answer (although he heavily researched it), it portrays Oswald ~~as~~ as the loner the Warren report portrayed him as. The danger of this is that people will read this as if it is non-fiction.
The portions <sup>I read</sup> are well-written, but DeLillo has made Oswald, Ruby and imaginary characters into the people he needed them to be to make his plot work. He deftly works the facts in with the fiction, but people who aren't familiar ~~with~~ with what is what, will accept whatever they want as true. Although I haven't read the entire thing, I know he has Oswald shooting Tippit, Oswald shooting at the motorcade (although not firing the fatal shot), Oswald buying the rifle, polishing it and practicing shooting it. ~~What~~ He even has Oswald taking a shot at Gen. Walker after talking to George De Morenschildt suggests Walker should be killed.

Well, that's about it. I just wanted to get you these articles as soon as I could.
